

Policy Webinar Series

SMEs and Climate Action

🌟 About:

This 10-part webinar series provides a platform for researchers and policy-makers to share experiences and explore new policy approaches to engage Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs) in the path towards climate-neutral economies.

The series is jointly hosted by the Austrian Institute for SME Research and the Zero Emission Enterprise \(ZEE\) Network.

The webinar series runs from November 2023 until April 2025.

👥 Who Should Attend:

Our webinars are designed for researchers and professionals in the fields of climate policy and SME policy.

📌 What to Expect:

- Insights: Our webinars will provide insights from latest research and practice on policy-making for engaging SMEs in climate action.
- Interactive Discussions: Two 10-minute talks, followed by a 10-minute Q&A and a 30-minute moderated debate.

📍 Where? The webinars are held online via Webex.

👁️ How to join? Please register here for the upcoming webinar.

📅 Upcoming webinar:

SMEs in a 'Just Transition' to Net-Zero: What next?

In this final edition of the webinar series, we reflect on the inequalities and inequities in the net-zero transition among SMEs. Afra Gründl (Constructor University – Bremen) will provide reflections from a gender perspective, while Will Eadson (Sheffield Hallam University) considers spatial and regional disparities in the transition to net-zero. Following their keynotes, we invite you to a joint discussion on how ecological and social dimensions can be better aligned in the path to net-zero.

Speakers: Afra Gründl, Constructor University (DE)

Will Eadson, Sheffield Hallam University (UK)

Date: 30 April 2025, 1:00 – 2:00 pm CET (12:00 – 1:00 pm GMT)

Language: English

Registration

Contact: Karin Bachinger k.bachinger@kmuforschung.ac.at

